Dedicated to Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness

The 1943 Annual of Astoria High School is dedicated to the present—to the courageous servicemen, civilian and military, giving their lives for this nation's preservation; to our country, answering the cry of the oppressed peoples of the earth in a call to arms; and to our way of life, standing as a symbol of freedom to the downtrodden of all nations.

We dedicate this book to the fulfillment of ideals for which we are fighting today; to the alleviation of distress throughout the world; and to peace, fair and everlasting.

This group of young patriots, the Vocational Club, has contributed its all to the winning of the war. Promoting harmony between employer and employee lends no small part to the smooth running of business necessary to the war effort.

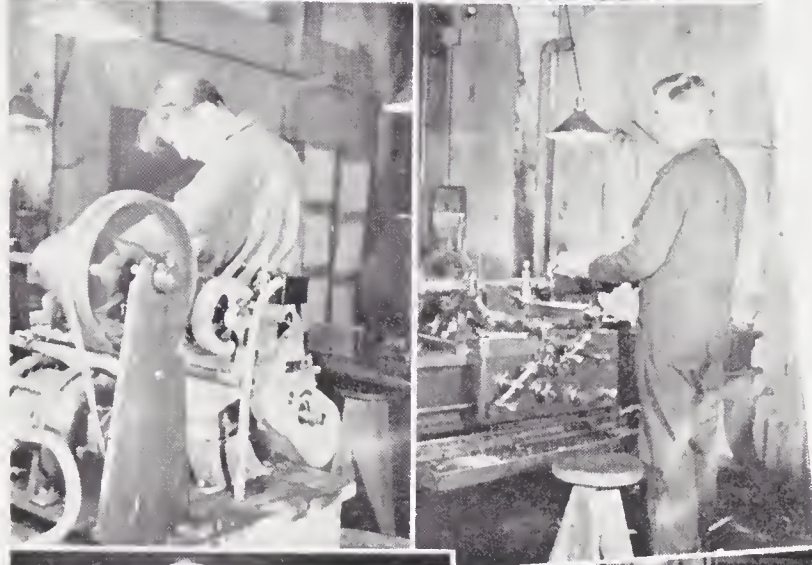

It takes real patriotic zeal and vigor to diligently help to win the war and also keep lessons up to par. Mr. Cox has advised this club's activities for three years. The officers directing the group of thirty-three this year were Ken Mattson, president; Jaxon Chadsey, vice-president; John Salisbury, secretary, and Hugo Simonson, treasurer and sergeant-at-arms.

In addition to the traditional keeping of the score board at games, the club members were represented at the vocational conference in Portland this year.

DEFENSE SCHOOL

Only by special permission and with an official escort, was Mr. Larson allowed to take this picture of the students at work in the defense school. Mr. Charles Gibson, former A. H. S. teacher, is the director of this project.

SHOP

MANUAL ARTS

Through the Manual Arts class the students have learned to make blue prints and various other projects which will aid them in future participation in the war effort. The students seen drawing, at the left, are under the direction of Mr. Cox.

AUTO MECHANICS

Another new class that has been offered to the boys of Astoria high is the auto mechanics class at the Loveli garage. The preliminary training that the boys receive there will help them to be mechanics and technicians in the armed forces. Some of the boys are shown learning the parts of a machine. Meet "Duke."

CARPENTRY

Carpentry which was introduced into Astoria high last year has given the boys training in building model houses. The boys shown here are working on the models. Mr. Cox directs this project also.

ADMINISTRATION

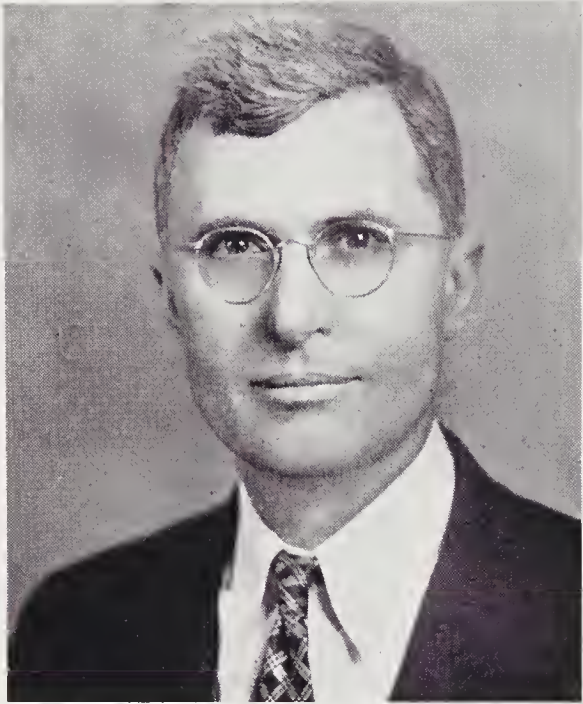

A. C. HAMPTON

In his eighteen years as superintendent of Astoria's City Schools, Mr. Hampton this year experienced one of his busiest because of world conditions and the burning of the high school building, during the Thanksgiving vacation. Meeting with the school board, with groups of business men, writing night letters, and sending telegrams to Washington authorities, Superintendent Hampton kept determinedly at it until he was able to announce that the school board had been granted the necessary permit and priorities to proceed with the rehabilitation of the burned high school building.

Acting as vice chairman of the managing committee of the U S O, as chairman of the County Library board, and as Junior Warden of the Grace Episcopal Church, Mr. Hampton further served his community.

His usual routine, in spite of these added duties, was not slighted, and words of encouragement were not spared to either students or faculty.

E. D. Towler

There were not many dull moments for the principal of old A.H.S. during 1942-43. Although vacationing in Portland when the high school burned, Mr. Towler lost no time in getting the situation in hand, so that within a week's time the four hundred and fifty pupils were in their class rooms again, though the class rooms were widely separated. The administrative end of a school conducted in three separate buildings involves many and complex problems; but with a cooperative faculty and student body, Mr. Towler admirably overcame all obstacles.

Besides being active in student affairs, Mr. Towler, as principal, was called upon to participate in an advisory capacity for rationing programs carried on in his building. This responsibility entailed the attending of many committee meetings and additional organizing.

Maintaining his office in the Presbyterian Annex, Mr. Towler endeavored to keep personally in touch with his student body and to provide ways and means for a program in keeping with the demands of the time.

Bob Kussman is the first Astoria High student body president to preside over a high school housed in three separate buildings. Pictured above are the entrances to the Presbyterian Church Annex, the high school annex, and the Lewis and Clark Junior High School. These three buildings furnished class rooms for the A.H.S. student body after the fire.

Holding their usual business meetings in Mr. Towler's office, at the Presbyterian Annex, the student council made plans to continue with National Assemblies programs and student body assemblies, and to promote defense activities.

The student council went on record in favor of organizing a Victory Corps, and were progressing satisfactorily in that direction when the fire disrupted, for the time being, all extra-curricular activities. Later the Civil Air Patrol served as a branch of the Victory Corps. Quite a number of both boys and girls joined. With a view to perpetuating certain traditions, the student council called student body meetings to award letters, to stimulate pep, and to elect student body officers.

Three years ago, the present January Seniors entered Astoria High with many scared looks and no cords. Evidently it did not take them long to overcome their fears, for they started right off with a Sophomore Hop, enthusiastically followed by a Junior Prom, a Junior play, a carnival, and finally a Senior play. The Senior play had an all-girl cast because most of the boys were in athletic activities.

This was the last January Senior class to graduate from Astoria High School, although the commencement exercises were held at the Lewis and Clark Junior High School.

Advisers

In September, 1940, as one hundred and sixty green little sophomores, the May Senior class started its journey through high school, gradually dwindling down to one hundred and twenty-seven. The class hopped into social activities with the Sophomore Hop. As juniors they featured "The Good Ship Lollipop" in their Junior Prom; and as seniors, they once more captured the limelight with the May Senior Ball, the theme "White Christmas," and with their play, "Moonlight for Herbert." In their senior year they showed their school spirit by winning the yell contest. Their class president was Kenneth Seeborg. Their advisers were Miss Allen and Miss McCann. Wearing the almost traditional blue caps and gowns for both commencement and baccalaureate, and with the voice of the speaker, Rex Putnam, State Superintendent, lingering in their ears, the May Senior class left their alma mater for the wide outside world on May fourteenth, a date to be remembered as one of the earliest yet.

The Journey

The waters without are dark
 With tempests, losing and retrieving,
 But we have experienced storms
 And will be brave on leaving.

Not graduating, but having
 A greater initiation into
 Life than those preceding
 Us—greater and more true.

Into the valley of darkness,
 An honor to go and repay
 An iota of what we and our
 Forbears received—if we may.

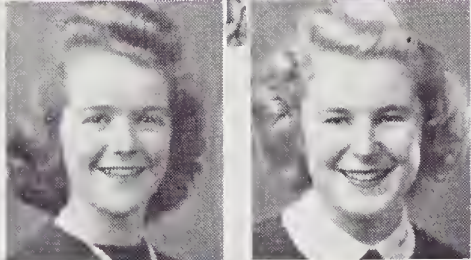

"The Fighting Forty-third" will
 Be truer yet—let it be told
 That we have lent to our flag
 The royalty of purple and of gold.

THOMPSON
Sergeant-at-Arms

The Junior Class abandoned its usual activities this year. It seemed inadvisable to give the Junior Class play and to spend money foolishly to stage a Junior Pram when our armed forces were in great need of equipment. Therefore, the students turned their zeal toward the war effort. Publicity Managers successfully advertised the opening of the tin can campaign and the war bond drive. Lewis Wright and Jack Blake very generously assisted the tin can campaign by salvaging six truck loads of cans within a month. In addition to this, the juniors presented a movie to further boost the sale of war bonds.

Four Roads

There ore four roods that coll to me
 The poth of the sun on the Western Sea,
 The secret troils to the Eostword stiewn
 With silver claws by the loughing moon
 The long lone road that leods me far
 Through twilight murk to the Northern Star,
 The fourth os frail os o skein of floss
 The webby light of the Southern Cross
 But strong as o rope in its lure foi me
 North, South, Eost, West—
 Which sholl it be?

SOPHOMORES

The sophomores of 1942-43 were indeed a peppy group. Roll Room One, under the direction of livewire Earl Fedje, collected its full quota of student taxes. Livewire Bob Kearney, of Roll Room Two, turned in ninety-nine per cent of that rooms' taxes. Led by class officers Bob Kearney, Joan Lewis, Joyce Kleger, and John Foster, the one hundred and eight sophs made a great effort in contributing to the tin can campaign and in the war bond drive. They also sponsored a pay assembly to further promote the sale of war stamps. Class advisers were Miss Marjorie Halderman and A. W. Larson.

Something interesting was carried on by the sophomore boys this year. A council was formed to make sure that the sophomore traditions of cleaning halls, shining seals, washing blackboards, and emptying wastebaskets were maintained. Members of this group were president, Charles Bergman, Duane Gustafson, Bob Kendall, Don Hogg, Howard Phillips, Vance McKenny, Dwight Smart, and Merle Thornton.

The Victory Corps was off to a flying start when an impish gremlin struck a wicked match and sent it into a flaming nose dive. When the corps finally reassembled some of its parts, it once again got on the beam enthusiastically for all the war-time activities in the school, participating in the tin can, the stocking, and the bond drives, which were sponsored by the Girls' League and the junior class. Without the formalities of an organization, the spirit of the Victory Corps was, throughout the year, permeating the physical education program, the regular curricula, and the extra-curricular activities. All out for defense of our way of living and preparation for a just and a lasting peace was the motto of A.H.S.

VICTORY CORPS

C. A. P.

With a membership made up of adults and forty high school students, twenty-six girls and fourteen boys, the Civil Aeronautics Patrol is now an active branch of the Victory Corps. This group, commanded by First Lieutenant E. G. Newbill, Squadron Commander, is receiving valuable defense training in such subjects as infantry drills, meteorology, air navigation, crash procedure, instruction in gas, guard duty, reconnaissance, recognition of aircraft, and military discipline. The enthusiastic members of C. A. P. meet twice a week in the evening. They earn one school credit upon satisfactory completion of the work.

"A" CLUB PEP CLUB

With a gentle pat the "A" club members welcomed the sophomores to old A. H. S. With Coach May as supervisor, the "A" club Kangaroo court really made all the boys toe the line. An "A" club sweater has always been respected by the boys and admired by all the girls.

The peppy little peppers led the boys on to many a victory with their snappy marches and enthusiastic yells. After the games were won and the cheers had died down the Pep Club gave the boys an unrationed banquet, which they did not soon forget.

HI-Y and TRI-Y

George Crandall capably led the Alpha Chapter of the Hi-Y's through another successful year. Their main activities included contributions to the War Prisoners' relief fund and the selling of the traditional Hi-Y hot dog. Mr. Thompson completed his fifteenth year as Hi-Y adviser.

The Beta Chapter of the Hi-Y's, originated in 1941 and advised by Glenn Burch, County Librarian, donated a considerable sum to the War Prisoners' relief fund. Jon Straumfjord was president of the club until he left for Willamette University.

Although forced to discontinue the sale of hamburgers, the Tri-Y's managed to struggle through the year with their usual prestige. The organization was competently led by Louise Kinney, president, and Miss Friedrich and Mrs. Dahl, advisers.

HI-KNIGHTS « G. A. A.

To an athletic-minded student body as Astoria High School, athletic clubs play a major part. As early as 1924, this fact was realized and acted upon. The Hi-Knights was organized for boys to assist the coach and manager. They have continued to function in this role ever since. The boys have been rather handicapped this year as they lost their adviser when Mr. Jensen entered the country's service.

To encourage athletics for all the girls of the high school, to develop a spirit of fair play and sportsmanship, to promote health, and create a spirit of fellowship among the students is the purpose of the Girls' Athletic Association. Mrs. R. Jensen has ably assisted and advised the club's officers which include: Mary Ann Mattson, president; Eva Wirkkala, vice-president; Rumohr Gulhaugen, secretary, and Ruth Hansen, treasurer.

DEBA DRAMS « MARINERS TORCH HONOR

Seeking to promote high school student morale, the Deba Drams, Mariners and Torch Honor students each in its own particular field maintained a fitting program. Entertainments were provided by the Deba Drams through amateur hours, assemblies and dances. The Mariners donned the title "Wavelets" and lived up to it. Stepping out of their traditional role of pin wearers, the Torch Honors launched a very successful campaign of stamp selling, which was involuntarily terminated when the high school burned.

GIRLS' LEAGUE - LIBRARY - HOME EC.

While preserving friendship and inspiration among girls, the Girls' League aided the war effort by filling ditty bags, trimming the soldiers' Christmas tree and entering the stocking drive.

Rationing on food didn't stop the Home Ec Club from teaching the forty eager members to become practical homemakers.

Miss Halderman and her twelve librarians, besides maintaining a temporary library, subscribed to the Reader's Digest for a Mexican school.

MUSIC

The Music Department suffered a real setback with the burning of the auditorium, for they not only lost a practice room but a cabinet of music as well. Using a small class room as a music room wasn't easy, but that was nothing compared to competing with the gym classes next door. However, the students and their director were not dismayed by these circumstances, and they soon put the department in to working order and produced some very fine programs, including a patriotic assembly. This program honored the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln and was composed of songs popular in their days.

ASTOR POST

The war left a definite stamp on the activities of the Astor Post. At the beginning of the year, the cannery crisis delayed the organization of the staff.

The shortage of labor made the publication very irregular, and then the fire made things even more difficult. After the fire the staff rallied and put out an extra edition, and at the end of the term were only two issues behind regular years.

At the end of the first term, the new assistant editor was Carol Murdock.

ZEPHYRUS

BETTY HENDRIX
Editor
LOUISE POTRECK
Business Manager

The outlook for a Zephyrus at the beginning of the year was not a rosy one for Editor Betty Hendrix. First was the uncertainty of photographs, camera supplies being rationed. Then came the fire. The Armed Services took the art and photography adviser, Mr. Jensen. So much credit goes to Mr. Larson, who "pinch-hitted" for Mr. Jensen, and to Editor Betty Hendrix, her plucky staff, and adviser, Miss Curry, who worked early and late to turn out this appropriately-themed book.

First Row: Murdock, Hendrix, Olsen. Second Row: Fransicich, Maki, Larson. Third Row: Crandall, Miss Curry.

Establishing a new record for collecting Zephyrus fees in a month, the livewires, led by Louise Potreck, also helped to schedule the individual pictures. In previous years the money has been collected in several installments, but this year the money was collected all at one time. Judith Seeborg was captain of the sophomore floor. Phyllis Atwood, the junior floor. Miss Lamb was adviser for this group.

NORVILLE MAY

FOOTBALL

The Fighting Fishermen of '42, under the tutelage of Coach Norville May, were defeated only once during the season to complete a very impressive schedule. The Astorians ran roughshod over six opponents and were tied by Milwaukie, 7 to 7, under a boiling sun that made playing very disagreeable.

On September 18, Astoria rolled over an inexperienced but game Ilwaco team, 41 to 0, showing power, as well as speed, in the backfield.

Hillsboro, going home on the short end of an 18 to 0 score, was the next team to meet defeat by the Fisherman.

At this stage of the season, The Dalles, who was to be the next victim, asked to call off their game, because of inability to find traveling facilities. However, Marshfield High answered the call of Coach May and came to Astoria, winning by the sound score of 20 to 0. The Pirates capitalized on many a Fisherman error to come out on top.

Then, still disappointed after the past week's performance, the Fishermen traveled to Milwaukie and were held to a 7 to 7 tie by the Maroons.

Hood River came to town, and Astoria took the Blue Dragons back to the train with a 27 to 20 victory under the Fishermen's belt. This was the beginning of a string of four victories that ended the season for Astoria.

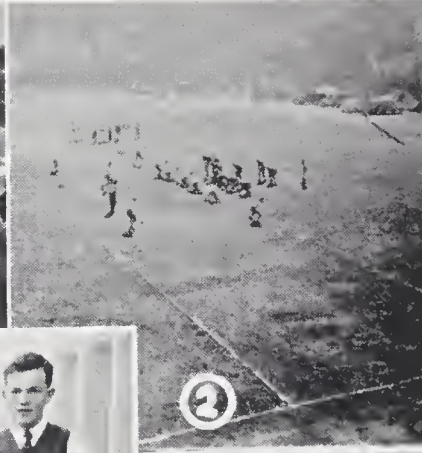

The Fishermen rode to Salem and plastered the Vikings with a 27 to 8 score.

Still unsatisfied with the last two victories, Astoria cracked Seaside wide open on a muddy field, to come through with a 34 to 6 win.

Finally, with half of the school at Tillamook to watch the proceedings and to pep its team onward, the Fighting Fishermen hung up their fourth win in a row and their sixth of the season, by over-powering the Cheesemakers in a tight-fought game 14 to 7.

Coach May deserves unspeakable credit for the fine task of shaping a group of boys into such a scrap-iron team.

WALLY PALMBERG

BASKETBALL

In the fall of 1938, Astoria welcomed back one of its greatest athletes, Wally Palmberg. He made a splendid record in his four years as coach of the Fighting Fishermen. Coach Palmberg left Astoria this year to play with a bigger team, the U. S. Navy, where he will be a physical instructor. Wally Palmberg not only is a wonderful coach but is also an excellent player. During his senior year at Oregon State College he made nearly every All-American team and established a record that stood until last year.

His record is one to be envied. In 1938-39, Astoria won the district title. In 1939-40, Palmberg's team really got the benefit of two years under his guidance. They won the district tournament and went on to take third place in the state tournament. The same year they raised the tournament scoring record from 180 to 186 points.

In 1941 the Fishermen nosed out Salem to win a state championship. During the 1941-42 season, the Fishermen easily ran through the season and took the 1942 trophy by defeating with a wide margin every team they played.

Basketball History »

The Astoria Fighting Fishermen this year finished on entire season without suffering one defeat, before they went to the tournament. Though not a toll team, they defeated some of the best teams in Oregon and Washington.

They started off the season with on easy victory over Ilwaco with a score of 26 to 12. This game was followed by the Astoria-Naselle game, with the score of 38 to 27. Longview was also defeated 51 to 22.

Two games with Solem on the U. S. O. floor followed these easy victories. The first night the Fishermen had a tough game, but finally took Solem with a score of 26 to 21. The second night the Astoria team easily won over the Vikings to the tune of 26 to 17.

Another easy win followed in the Astoria-Seaside game. The score was 42 to 16.

The second time Astoria met Ilwaco was on their home floor. The Washington team gave the Fishermen a run for their money with a score of 25 to 22, the Astorians being victorious.

Then come two successive games with Marshfield. The Fishermen trounced them both times, with scores of 27 to 21 and 34 to 22, respectively.

Tillamook was next on the list. The Astorians downed the Cheesemakers 38 to 28 on a "crockerbox" floor in Tillamook.

The next two games with Solem put two more victories on the list for Astoria. Scores were 25 to 22 and 26 to 17.

A slight slump followed. Although the Fighting Fishermen suffered no defeats, they had some "close shaves" when they dumped Naselle, Longview and Tillamook with scores of 33 to 28, 44 to 41, and 26 to 23, respectively.

At the end of the season, though crippled by illness, they cleaned up well earned victories over Newberg in two successive games. It was these games that assured Astoria's entrance into the State Basketball Tournament at Solem. The scores were 44 to 25 and 30 to 18.

The defeat of Solem by Astoria at the tournament was the fifth of the season. The Fishermen lost to both Boker and Pendleton with close scores in hard fought games. The scores were 25 to 29 and 34 to 33.

Although no outstanding victories were made during the tournament by Astoria, the Fishermen had three All-State players chosen from their ranks, Cliff Crandall, first team, and Kenny Seeborg and Happy Lee, second team.
